

You've got lines and line segments down. Kiss your brain! 😊

Things that need more practice:

A ray is named with the first letter indicating the point where the ray begins.

\overrightarrow{RL} starts with point R.

When we are labeling, we must remember to label our figures correctly as if they were on their own. Refer to #5. Don't forget the arrow on your ray as well.

Practice "intersecting rays and lines" problems on IXL to improve this skill.
